

3. Leni Riefenstahl

Helene Bertha Amalie Riefenstahl was born in Berlin on 22 August 1902.

She is best known for her propaganda films, most notably Triumph of the Will, which she made for Hitler's Nazi Party.

Today, this infamy overshadows her brilliance as a cinematographer.

Leni's Voice:

"I set about seeking a thread, a theme, a style, in the realm of legend"

"The applause was so loud and so insistent that I had to respond with several encores"

'Days of Yore' Bricolage

1. Julian of Norwich (aka Juliana...)

Born in 1342 – probably in Norwich – this anchoress and mystic wrote Revelations of Divine Love in the wake of a series of visions.

This is believed to be the first book written by a woman in English to have been published. It wasn't published until 1670.

Juliana's Voice:

*"All shall be well,
and all shall be well
and all manner of thing shall be well"*

2. Ada Lovelace

Ada Lovelace, born in 1815 and daughter of Romantic poet Lord Byron, is considered to be the first computer programmer.

Mathematician Ada is known for her work on Charles Babbage's Analytical Engine.

Ada's Voice:

"The more I study, the more insatiable do I feel my genius for it to be"