

Newsletter: Summer 2022

What's New?

If musical theatre or current affairs are your thing, I combine the two in my new fortnightly features for aussietheatre.com – check out my first two articles:

<https://www.aussietheatre.com.au/features/jagged-little-pill-its-not-ironic-yall>

<https://www.aussietheatre.com.au/features/mr-hyde-and-offshore-immigration-processing-the-dark-side-of-good-intentions>

New Books

I recently read and reviewed Audrey Magee's new book, The Colony, for BookBrowse. Here's the opening paragraph:

Having based her debut novel in mainland Europe during World War II, Audrey Magee sets her follow-up, The Colony, closer to her own roots: an Irish island in the late 1970s, at the height of the Anglo-Irish Troubles.

You can read the whole review here.

More News

The bargain of the moment has to be Simon Sebag Monefiore's Stalin: The Court of the Red Tsar, available in Kindle format - for less than £1!

I'd click now!

And I love this reading poster from <https://whatimreading.org/>. It's a great way to promote what you're reading, and the QR code makes it easy for others to look up the book. Just type in your name and the title of the book you're reading – then voilà!